THE CHEFOO GOLD FIELDS. WHATEVER may be the truth of the report, alluded to by the North China journals, that a number of Californian miners are on their way to Chefoo, it may, we think, be taken for granted that we are on the verge of a crisis in Chinese foreign policy. If the yield of Gold continues, there is not the faintest proba bility that the discoveries made will pass over as a mere "nine days wonder." Nothing but force, and that too exerted in a manner which would be a severe effort for even a civilized Government, will have even the slightest regulating effect upon the vast crowds who will most certainly flock to the gold fields if their bona fide character is once established; while as regards absolute prohibition it may be safely averred that, unless the European powers are prepared to employ powerful squadrons and detachments of troops to guard the integrity of the Shantung province, it is out of the question altogether. Viewed in any light there is but one of two prospects before the Chinese-either to see the province cannot possibly presume them to be aware of it) shews the astuteness of the entirely disorganised and given up to a Chinese. But it may serve to put us rabble of all nationalities, whose sole on our guard against future schemes of object would be gold and whose career a like nature. Either our contemporary would be but one vast catalogue of crimes; has been egregiously misled or has exor to preserve comparative order by imposed the most unwarrantable piece of mediately, in conjunction with European Chinese insolence which has occurred powers, taking measures to freely open up since the termination of the war. the province under reasonable restric-

the programme will be repeated.

At the anniversary meeting of the Ameritan Geographical Society, held in New York, May 14, the President, Hon. Charles P. Daly, exhibited, among various antique maps belonging to the society, a map of Africa two centuries ago, which, it is declared, shows that the Dutch and Portusuese hydrographers of that period had a knowledge of the lake Albert Nyanza, and other points which have been claimed as recent discoveries.

'days" when a five years' residence in China secured a competency, if not a fortune, for life. A temporary return to such a state of society is possible and, it may be, probable. But at least there are sufficient evidences that we are ou the verge of some great changes to make us, and all interested in China, watch with no small anxiety the course of events in the North. Even the British Minister will possibly awake to the fact that "something may happen;" and if there be no other result than this we shall have cause to feel deeply interested in news from the Chefoo gold fields. THE OPIUM SQUEEZE.

WE yesterday referred to some remarks which had appeared respecting the Chiness intention of establishing additional Custom houses on the mainland, and, as we still think justly, ridiculed the ideal of our being able to interfere in the matter. An article in our morning contemporary, however, gives the details of certain facts of so extraordinary a nature that (if it's statements be correct); we most heartily join in exposing and reprobating the illegal and impertiner t intention (to use no stronger term) by which the Chinese Government must have been actuated.

According to our contemporary there is established in Hongkong an agency of the Canton Customs, which is empowered to grant for the sum of sixteen taels, a Customs permit for each chest of oniur shipped for a treaty port from Hongkong. This fact taken in itself merits no particular notice. If people like to pay half the Customs duties in Hongkong and the Customs like to collect it that is no business of any one's. But, adds our contemporary, "any opium found on board any vessel will be confiscated unless such permit (i.e., a permit from their agent in Hongkong) for it can be produced. The insolent impertinence which could attempt such a regulation as a matter of law, and not of option, could be found nowhere but in China; and we do not wonder that the Chinese here are becoming "afraid that the regulation will be extended to other goods." We have but one word of advice to give to any traders in opium or other goods-Defy the regulation and try whether the Chinese Custums will dare to carry out so flagrant a violation of treaty rights. The instant extinction of Mr Ho Alloy's office by His Excellency the Governor, and a public meeting protesting in the most energetic and forcible terms against the supineness which has tolerated its establishment will, of course, follow the forcible exposure by our contemporary. But in the meantime uninterested bystanders have been afforded an amusing illustration of the depth of degradation into which the arrogant self assumption of the pig-tailed idiots who hold the reins of power in China would attempt to plunge the trading, interests of this Colony. The secreey of the arrangement moreover challenges our admiration, while it excites our strongest indignation. That they should have successfully concealed the project from Her Majesty's Consul at Canton, Mr Robertson, as well as from His Excellency the Governor, (for we

About 8 P.M. the carriage was brought home, the horses being led by the horse-boys, when a few vards from the stables a valuable grey mare dropped down from sheer exhaustion, and died within half an hour. The cause of death is assigned by the plaintiff to overdriving and ill-treatment, and the approx imate value of the animal is sought to be recovered. Mr Hazeland having stated

SCENE DURING A DEBATE ON THE JOHNSON IMPEACHMENT CASE. The following is from the Morning

Herald's Washington correspondent, dated The time has not been without its interesting incidents. The correspondents yesterday had places in the corridors outside the Senate Chamber. From time to time, as the senators, wearied by the discussion, or sickened by the bad air, or weakened by hunger and lack of stimulant nassed out of their room, one by one, to snatch a moment's refreshment at the convenient restaurant and bar, they were pounced upon by the gentlemen of the press and badgered into the betraval of official secrets, or driven to escape at a run their tormentors. As the flushed or sallow face of some learned judge appeared at the big door, there was a rush among the representatives of the press, and then arose a clamour of questioning: "Who's speaking now?" "What does he say?" "How does he stand?" "How is it?" "How will it end?" "What do you think of it?" "Have vou spoken?" "What is your position?" "What did you say ?" "Can't you give me a synunsis of so-and-so's speech?" "I'm the representative of the" Tribune, World. Herald. On the whole, senaors seemed very willing to communicate all they knew-a questionable alacrity it must be confessed. In the restaurants and bar-room in the neighbourhood the honourable gentlemen were subjected to a similar ordeal. pressions were heard from morning till midnight. Honourable Congressmen backed their party and their opinions. Waiters in the restaurants, the news-boys and the shoeblacks, caught the infection. Bets were made by telegraph, upon information by telegraph conveyed. Many professional gamblers from New York and other large towns were busy in the hotels here. Out side of the Government offices no legitimate business has been done in Washington for two days, save the business of buying and selling cocktails, cobblers, and the like. As the American in moments of depression or excitement always flies to his favourite bar, you can fancy that the artists who mix fancy drinks," and wear "Mountains of Light" in their shirt bosoms, have been sufficiently busy. Moral force, the belief, that is, that the invader was irresistible, had almost as powerful and direct an influence on the actual struggle. Up to the last moment a thousand resolute men might have defeated the expedition. Even now, with success assured. it is difficult for any but Anglo-Indians to comprehend the measureless audacity which enabled Sir Robert Napier to send that handful of Europeans and Beloochees up the narrow ascent to the fortress gate. Maby of our readers must have seen that narrow ledge by which the Mont Cenis roads passed Mondovi, with the mountain bending down above, and the sheer depth below. Imagine that ledge protracted for three miles, and some 2,000 soldiers crawling up it higher and higher into the air, and they may gain some idea of Theodore's advantages. Tyrolese would have crushed the army only by rolling stones. Frenchmen would have thrown up a barricade at every The Snider and the rocket would alike have been powerless against men possessed of such splendid cover, and even British and Belooch courage will not long stand the certainty of death by precipices, death inflicted before courage can even exert itself against the enemy. Even when arrived at the gate, the men could only gather : in a helpless plump, into which a single discharge of grape, or the fire of a few muskets from the inside, would have thrown confusion, soon to be extended down the whole line. There is nothing in war so dangerous as the beginning of a retreat down an ascent of that kind, and at the very last moment a genuine resistance, such as Europeans would have offered, might have flung the expedition back to the plain, or cost us half its numbers. That there was no such resistance was due, not to the want of means—there were thousands of men in Magdala-but to the utter demoralization into which the Abyssinians had fallen, a demoralization which, in its degree and kind, is to civilized men almost inexplicable, and resembles rather the despair with which men would regard an encounter with demons than any customary form of cowardice. Up to Good Friday Theodore and his men were evidently quite hearty, and quite determined on resistance. They obeyed his order to descend and attack the pioneer guard after it crossed the Bashilo with alacrity and confidence, and made, by all accounts, an exceedingly gallant rush. Neither their chief nor the soldiers had the slightest idea of the nower of the enemy upon whom they were charging, or understood in the least the impassable nature of that wall of leaden soray with which a civilized army protects itself against the rush of mere brute courage. The moment they felt it the Abyssinian soldiery became cowards, as incapable of further resistance as Europeans are of standing up to thunder-They felt under that withering storm of shell, and bolts, and balls, before that machine flinging 900 bullets every ten seconds, as the men of the 33rd would have felt if called on to face the lightning. as if they were asked for impossibilities, for a courage which was not courage, but a madthe senators, objects of interest. It kept up the awe of irresistible power, the sense that resistance was useless, the resolve to be passive and expect, which actuated all within the fort except Theodore and his personal friends. Why Asiatics should suffer this which would make Europeans fight like overdriven wolves, it is hard to explain: but the fact is certain, so certain that we doubt if there is an instance of an Asiatic force, unless sustained by a religious impulse, re-forming after a defeat by Europeans. They are as brave as we are, as prave, many of them, as any people can be, and meet death when resolved to die as if it were a relief. Opinions of the Press.

From the Englishman (Calcutta) of June 8:-"The celebrated volumes of the French Appé Hue on China, and Sir Rutherford Alcock's account of Japan are, no doubt, works of a far higher class and more extensive scope than the one now before us; but for practical utility, for all purposes of locomotion, trading and residence in any of the places coming withper cent has been declared on the Not in its compass, The Treaty Ports of China and Japan, by Messrs Mayers, Dennys and King, far surpasses them. It is difficult to know under what class of books to place it, particulars of their contribution to that for it contains a mixture of history, topography, hygiene, Murray's Hand-book and Bradshaw's Guide, -all as complete and excellent in their own line as could be expected; and though, perhaps, the book will not prove attractive to students, it is calculated to give a more intimate knowledge of the towns it describes, aided by the excellent maps which accompany it the work entirely of Chinese-than any of the more elaborated works that have preceded a show that for any one about to visit, or reside in either of the countries described, this work contains not only most valuable

(N. C. Daily News, May 16.) A very interesting book has lately been Company for that year divided pro rata to China and Japan," to which it forms a complete guide, and regarding the history of which it gives interesting particulars. Maps of the various localities described are . inserted, and an appendix shews the existing means of transport between Europe and America and these two countries. work of the kind was much needed, to place within reach of the general public information regarding the districts in which they reside that had hitherto been concealed under the mysterious hieroglyphics of the Chinese language, or at best open only to sinologues. The modest hope expressed by the authors, that much will be found in the present book that is new and unknown to the general reader, is, we think, fully justified. * * * Hongkong and Canton, for example, each occupy more than 100 pages, comprising every conceivable particular regarding them, from their history native and foreign, to particulars of the geological formation and botanical wealth of the neighbourhood. * * * Not the least interesting feature in the book under review, is the insight it affords usinto the character of the population in diff rent parts of this vast empire. * * One of the most interesting chapters is devoted to a sketch of the history and topographical eatures of Formosa. The vicissitudes of its history, the peculiarities of its inhabitants, and the reputed mineral wealth of its billsaffordample subject for research; and, to a person of Mr Swinhoe's tastes, must have offered powerful attractions. From his "Notes on Formosa" are derived many of the particulars given in the work under review. * * * Interesting descriptions of the fauna and flora of the island are given, for details of which we refer our readers to the book itself. We have, we believe, said enough to show the scope and character of the work; and must take leave of it for the present, though with the intention of completing our sketch of the information it gives regarding the various treaty ports, on a future occasion. In the meantime, we can assure our readers that no one who takes the trouble to gain a more intimate knowledge of it, will regret the time employed. (Singapore Free Press, May 9.) We referred briefly, several days ago, to new work published by Messre. A. Shortrede & Co., of Hongkong, entitled "The Treaty Ports of China and Japan." But it would be utterly impossible, in a condensed notice of such a work, to give an adequate idea of its contents. The historical events of interest since the foundation of the settlement of Hongkong, are perhaps too much condensed into a general summary; but the most important feature in the composition of the society of the present colony, is detailed at greater length. When we come to consider that the book before us makes no pretensions to be a history, but merely a guide book, we cannot hesitate to pronounce it at once the most complete work of its kind ever issued. The Appendix may be termed the China Brad shaw, and the text teems with interesting papers, -historical, betauical, and descriptive. The maps and plans are useful illustrations of the geographical position of the treaty ports, and a valuable assistance both to travellers and residents. Shanqhai Recorder May 7, and Supreme Court and Consular Gazette, May 11, 1867.
